A Growing Sense of Justice. The attentive observer of current even The attentive observer of current events cannot have failed to perceive of late a very marked change in public opinion in favor of the great Eric Hailway, as an ayenue of transit to and from the Metropolis, and a very general acknowledgment on the part of the press and the traveling public that the slanders at one time so widely circulated by interested parties, to the prejudice of the line, are not only unfounded in fact but calculated seriously to inconvenience travelers, by inducing them convenience travelers, by inducing them take more circuitous and less luxurious modes of journeying. The truth is, the public is never, as a body, far from right in its conclusions, has come to look with mistrust upon the oft-repeated assertions prejudicial to this great route. They find that, notwithstanding all said to the contrary, there is no lime which in point of comfort, nunctuality and reliability of the comfort, nunctuality and reliability. comfort, punctuality and reliability offers such inducements as the broad guage Eric Railway, which delivers its westward-bound passengers either at Buffalo, Dun-kirk, Cleveland or Cincinnati, without change of cars, and provides, for their change of cars, and provides, for their comfort and accommodation, during the journey, spacious and luxurious coaches, provided with all the accessories of a first-class hotel parlor or bedroom, and fitted up in a style which can only be compared o the fabled glories of the palace of Sar-lanapalus. Seeing and appreciating all his, the American traveler unconsciously exclaims, "Can this be the road which has been so persistently represented as unsafe, rregular and inconvenient to travelers? so, (to use the words of a recent corres-

country were 'badly managed' too. It is without exception the most comfortable line I ever traveled over." And this testimony is daily corroborated by scores of people, who, prompted by curiosity or by the advice of those who have already traveled over the line, give the Erie the preference, and before their journey is half over are enthusiastic in their admiration of its merits. Every day this reaction is more apparent in the aug-mented demand at all the central offices for Through tickets, in the increased length of the passenger trains, going each way over the road every day, and in the construction of some elegant new Sleeping Coaches, which for beauty and luxury of finish must be seen to be appreciated.

Public opinion is at last becoming settled in the conviction that there is but one great National route between the West and East, and that that is the Broad Gauge Erie Railway.

ARIVER AND AVEATHE ARRIVED

John Lumsden, Umpire, DEPARTED John Lumsden.

The Cumberland yesterday at noon was rising at the rate of one foot an hour. Last night there was 20 feet on the shouls and the river still rising. Stone a river went up 18 feet in the 21 hours clo ing yesterday The Lumsden left last evening taking out 140 hogsheads of tobacco and 1,000 barrels of flour fer New Orleans: The Tyrope was expected from Cairo last night and will probably be at the landing his morning. The Spray is due from Cincinnati.

The Umpire goes up the river to-day with a picnic excursion to Priestley's Springs.

The Tyrone is advertised for Friday at 4 P. M.
The Memphis Append of Tuesday says.
"The river came to a stand Sunday night, and has fullen rapidly since. It will go down steadily for some time to come. Our dispatches give full information from all points. From the Arkansas the latest reports place that stream on a stand, with about twelve feet to the mouth from Clayton's Headquarters. At any tate there is codding of water in that stream, and plenty in White river. The weather has turned clear and warm, and has, we hope, becom settled for a few days. Business on the levee was brisk for Monday. The New Orleans Piccepone says: Wo are informed by persons who profess to know of what they speak, that the river is undermining the Raft and forcing a chan-nel through it. Evidence of this is shown by the fact that more water comes down Old river now than formerly, and the navi gation to Carolina Bluds is much improved. Without the slightest claim or pre-tension to engineering or hydro-statics, we venture the assertion that it seems clearly within the bounds of proba-bilities for the river, succeping under the own bed, and by abracion of its banks, so loosen the raft as to render its removal a matter of easy accomplishment. In view of the immense area of country dependent on Red river, and the interests involved, this "were a consumnation devoutly to be wished;" and if Old Red rolled its turbid waves through the flowery vale and fertile plains of New England's sunny clime, the "best Government," cfa., would take the matter in hand, and "remove all disabilities by appropriate legislation." Carno, June 15. - Hiver stationary Weather cloudy. Mercury 78. CAPITAL. $200,000
